Georgette Heyer,
Biography of a Bestseller
by author
Jennifer Kloester

'Hell hath no fury like a historical novelist plagiarised' (Bookseller)

Jennifer Kloester's biography of Wimbledon's bestselling novelist, Georgette Heyer, reveals the fury and fun of a white-hot literary catfight in which Georgette nails and names Barbara Cartland as a thief. Though admired by military and social historians of the Regency period alike, many devoted readers and bloggers, including celebrity Stephen Fry, refer to Georgette as their 'guilty secret'. Now foremost Heyer expert Jennifer Kloester re-appraises the witty author who has resolutely withstood the test of time and the title 'Queen of Regency Romance'.
